

Real World Advice Specifically For Highly Sensitive People

Do You Really Understand Your Highly Sensitive Nature? Do you feel like a human sponge that takes in everything (physically and emotionally) around you? Are you acutely aware of and sensitive to the moods and problems of others? Have you been accused of being too touchy? Are you uncomfortable in a crowded environment? If so, perhaps you're a highly sensitive person. Extensive research done by clinical psychologist, Elaine Aron, Ph.D., indicates that 15-20% of the population is comprised of highly sensitive people. A significant percentage of this 15-20% is not aware of this inherited character trait and the effect that it has on their lives. Cliff Harwin, husband, father, business owner, and highly sensitive person has written about this subject from a personal perspective and will share with you the lessons that he has learned. He is the author of the books, Making Sense of Your High Sensitivity, and Mommy's First Memories of You! What you will gain from reading this book: * Tips to make better life choices consistent with your highly sensitive nature. * This easy to read book will positively affect the way you live, behave, and will help you feel at peace with your highly sensitive nature. Gain inspiration and information from a source that you will refer to again and again.
